Man Loses Four F

Watertown, July 28.—From under the floor of a deserted old railroad station at Lofty Crest, near here, there was taken yesterday the body of a man who had been slain fully six months ago and to whose identity there is no clue. A fracture of the skull, evidently inflicted with some blunt instrument, showed the victim had met with foul play. His assallants then ripped up the floor, jammed the body under the boards and replaced them, confident there would be no discovery until they had had ample time to escape.

The victim was about thirty years id and his clothing was of good qualty, the patent leather shoes, gaiters, at and shirt all having been made in the Louis, although the names of the St. Louis, although the names of the nakers are so blurred as to be illegible. The police hope to obtain a cluerom a pair of pearl cuff buttons with he design of a gold owl perched on a loud crescent.
